

Every child should own a hundred books by the age of five. To that end, Book Dash gathers creative professionals who volunteer to create new, African storybooks that anyone can freely translate and distribute. To find out more, and to download beautiful, print-ready books, visit bookdash.org.

Who takes the train?

Illustrated by Ntembiso Velemane

Written by Mabel Mnensa

Designed by Carla Latsky

Edited by Ester Levinrad

with the help of the Book Dash participants in Cape Town on 14 April 2018.

ISBN: 978-1-928442-35-6

This work is licensed under a Creative Commons Attribution 4.0 Licence (<http://creativecommons.org/licenses/by/4.0/>). You are free to share (copy and redistribute the material in any medium or format) and adapt (remix, transform, and build upon the material) this work for any purpose, even commercially. The licensor cannot revoke these freedoms as long as you follow the following license terms:

Attribution: You must give appropriate credit, provide a link to the license, and indicate if changes were made. You may do so in any reasonable manner, but not in any way that suggests the licensor endorses you or your use.

No additional restrictions: You may not apply legal terms or technological measures that legally restrict others from doing anything the license permits.

Notices: You do not have to comply with the license for elements of the material in the public domain or where your use is permitted by an applicable exception or limitation.

No warranties are given. The license may not give you all of the permissions necessary for your intended use. For example, other rights such as publicity, privacy, or moral rights may limit how you use the material.

Who takes the train?

Ntembiso Velemane Mabel Mnensa Carla Latsky

Today is Beach Day!

Naledi is going on the train for the first time.

“Who takes the train?” Naledi asks.

“Let’s wait and see,” Mom says.

“Look, Mom!” Naledi whispers.

“Hello little girl, do you want to say hi?”

Naledi looks at Mom.

Mom nods.

“Yes please!” says Naledi.

“Chocolates!
Chocolates!”

“Please can I get one?” Naledi asks.

“We need to leave space in your tummy for the ice-cream at the beach,” Mom says.

“Why are you wearing pyjamas?”
Naledi asks.

“We do karate.”

“Like this!”

Kapow!

“Oh, look! A soldier.”

“No,” Mom says, “that is a sailor.
She is from the navy.”

“Mom! Drummers!”

“Listen, Naledi,” Mom says.

“The drums beat to the sound of the train.”

“Do you want to dance with us?”
the drummer asks.

“We are getting off at the next stop,” Mom tells Naledi who is now tired.

“So, what kind of people take the train?” Mom asks.

“The best kind,” Naledi says.

